Provident works closely with local courts, probation and parole offices, the Division of Family Services (MO) and the Division of Child and Family Services to ensure that domestic violence offenders are held accountable for their actions. In addition, we also work with victims, advocacy agencies and other offender programs.

Referring agencies receive a monthly report on each client to track progress.

MEDV clients are also required to sign a release to enable Provident to contact victims regarding client progress and victim safety.

We believe men can change their abusive attitudes and behaviors and live positive lives.

Men Ending Domestic Violence (MEDV)

About MEDV
MEDV is a program designed to help men end their use of violence and abuse through psycho-educational groups conducted by Provident, a social service agency founded in 1860 in St. Louis.

MEDV has been in existence since 1996 and consists of an intake assessment and 32 weekly sessions.

Philosophy
Physical violence is usually part of a larger pattern of abusive behavior that can include emotional abuse, isolation, threats, coercion, stalking and harassment.
The tenets of our program include:
- Violence is never justified.
- Anger does not cause battering.
- Batterers abuse for a variety of reasons and in a variety of settings, all of which need to be addressed.
- Alcohol and drug use can exacerbate, but do not cause aggressions. Substance abuse treatment can be critical for success in reducing violence and control.
- Unless addressed, aggressive behavior can increase in severity and frequency.
- Abusive men can learn to have healthy, non-violent relationships.
- Men who cannot or will not amend their abusive behavior should be subject to civil and criminal penalties designed to protect others.

Curriculum
The 32-week curriculum includes understanding various forms of Power & Control, The Cycle of Violence, Gender Roles and Oppression, Thinking Errors, Empathy, Anger Management, Healthy Communication and Conflict Resolution, and Effective Parenting. We rely heavily on the Power & Control Wheel created by the Duluth Model.
